In the case of Farr vs. Farr, solien for divorce, the court affirmed the decision below, dismissing the bill.

Judge Olin said that the bill asked far a divorce on the ground that the husband had been misled and married, as he supposed, a widow-with one child, but he claims that he ascertained subsequently that she also had had a bastard. It had been shown that the woman was living very respectably in Brooklyn, and he thought that the great error in the case was that the papers were not handed to the District abscrupy and Farr proscented for perjury. Adjourned.
